At Bowlin Farms Doggie Adventures, we will always exercise reasonable care of the dogs staying in our care. As the owner, you acknowledge and understand that your dog will co-mingle with the other dogs, and as a result your dog may acquire small cuts, scrapes, or other minor injuries in the course of normal dogs playing. We are always monitoring the area and play as it is going on. However, you as the owner are relinquishing any claims against Bowlin Farms Doggie Adventures and its officers, employees, owners, and agents. Except those claims or related incidences that the dog was not in fault and is in need of medical attention by another dog. We are not liable for any random acts or self-inflicted injuries that your dog has or may inflict on him/herself while in our care. If your dog is in need of medical attention, it will be up to the officers, employees or agents at Bowlin Farms Doggie Adventures to indicate how the dog needs to be medically treated. All officers, employees or agents have animal first aid certificates where they are trained to their best abilities to treat your dog with the appropriate care at that time. You as the owner will always be notified to the best of our ability if an event ever happens that your dog needs medical attention.
